Thompson was a merchant, his (the peaker's) landford, and a trustee of the Now York University, and that the check had been given him (Scheibner) in payment of a bill for tuition of the drawer's son. Supposing it to be correct Mr. Westermann thereupon scopted the check, and, after deducting the amount due him, paid Scheibner the balance. Subsequently, upon resentation of the check, Mr. Westermann was informed by the paying teller of the Third National Bank that there were no moneys in bank to the credit of R. Thompson. Justice Shandley committed the accused to answer in default of ball. It is said there are two other charges at a little character pointing against Scheibner, one for $50 and one for $57.

THURSDAY, May 16-6 P. M. day, and during the afternoon its tendency was down-ward, without any assignable cause, if we except a concocted rumor that money was solive, the absurdity of which is obvious in view of the absence of any marked demand either from the Stock Exchange or else-where. The Sub-Treasury has been absorbing currency latterly in payment for coin and new five-twenty bonds sold, and its balance this evening almost needless to remark that this buying and selling of securities by the government is a part of the funding sirable, very few of the commission houses being abi buyers are intimidated by the local aspect of the stock market. If we look to the earnines of the leading roads, however, and the state of monetary affairs, we find much to strengthen confidence in the sta-bility of values and to stimulate purchases for a rise, and it is not until we find ourselves among the professional speculators of the Board of Brokers that the complexion of affairs assumes so cerulean a hue. With the prospect same time revive; for there is nothing in the present condition or probable tuture of the country to justify the tion to the recent failure of a New York cetton house:

Various rumors are circulated in the city, and no doubt they have gone abroad, that many of the banks in the city have suffered seriously by the failure of Watta, Crane & Co., of New York. Indeed, it was stated that two of the banks would, in consequence of losses, be obliged to suspend. We have investigated the subject and can soundidently assert that there is no foundation for the rumor. Not a bank in the city is in any way incommoded in the least. Large amounts of paper on Watta, Given & Co. have been discounted by the banks, but from what we learn from sources entitled to confidence they will not be lesser in the authenmain. There is no question that the failure above stated affects ear own State materially, but not to a rumous extents. Watta, Drupe & Co. had large dealings in this city, Clarksville, Praducah, Handerman and other tobacco points. Tobaccomiterests have set been abs sufference. It is the losses on ion to the recent failure of a New York cotton house:-

Brevet Major Abner R. Benedict, U. S. A. This officer, we regret to state, died yesterday in this city at the early age of twenty-seven years. The deceased was a native of New York, and was the son of the late Abner Benedict, who was lost, together with his wife, on the steamship Arctic, in 1854. He received his wife, on the steamship Arctic, in 1854. He received his education at the University of Vermont, and after his graduation returned to this city and engaged is mercantile pursuits. Immediately after the breaking out of the war he volunteered as a private in Colonel Butterfield's regiment, which was one of the three that first left here for the seat of war. At the close of 1861, however, he left the volunteer service, having received a commission as Second Lieutenant in the Pourth regular infantry. During the war the deceased greatly distinguished himself, being brevetted Captain for gallant and meritorious conduct at Gaines' Mills. At the battle of Frederickaburg he received a ball in the breast, which poneristed his lungs and lodged in his back, from which place it was cut out. This wound forced him to return to New York, but as soon as it had healed he returned to the army, with the rank of Brovet Major, and afterward commanded his regiment at the battle of Gettysburg. The exposures incident to a soldier's life, added to his wounds, caused irritation of the lungs and resulted in consumption, which speedily ended his days.
